Death of Mrs. Brooks.
Mrs. Brooks, widow of the late William H. Brooks, died June 7, 1891, after a long illness of cancer. In the afternoon of that day Dr. L. L. Lawrence conducted the funeral services in the Presbyterian church in the presence of the assembled audience. Her body was consigned to the grave at 10 o'clock in the morning. She was born in a remarkable manner. A few months ago she only a month ago, and now the mother has gone to her reward.
They were members of the Presbyterian church, and lived in Christian unity.
In the works of another, she was modest and retiring, discreet and prudent. She was a crown to her husband, and a blessing to the household, while in her heart was the law of kindness.
Mrs. Annie Carrington Brooks was born at Mount Zion, Hancock county, Georgia, July 10, 1827, daughter of Miles and Nancy Carrington. She joined the Presbyterian church at Mount Zion in 1848, under the pastorate of Rev. Francis Bowman. In 1848 she came to Monterey neighborhood in Abbeville county, and in 1850 she was married to William H. Brooks, to whom were born six children, four of whom survive. From the time of their marriage they lived at Warrenton until 1882, when, in the spring of that year, they moved to Abbeville village, and changed her membership to this place. She leaves a sister, Mrs. Peter Gilbert, who lives in Anderson county.

The State against John Jordan, throwing brickbat into passenger car. Gully. Nine months in penitentiary.

The Way the Money is Absorbed.
Mr. Wyatt Aiken has sold five hundred bushels of oats at eighty cents per bushel. He raised the grain last year when wheat was scarce. It is no wonder we have hard times when farmers gather up the currency, and in this way retire circulation. Mr. Aiken's conduct should be investigated by the neighbors, and if he doesn't stop raising the money, he will be doing it to the detriment of the country over to have more currency in farmers in every section are constantly gathering it up, and putting it out of circulation.

The School Meeting.
Some of our citizens are agitating a movement which may result in the closing of the school. The proposed meeting is called with a view to converting the old Methodist church into a public school house, and all persons interested in the movement are invited to meet at the Council Chamber, over P. Rosenberg & Co.'s store, at six o'clock next Friday evening. When a full conference is held, the exchange of ideas may be had before taking decisive steps.

The Richest Man in Abbeville County.
Mr. H. P. McGee, merchant of Due West is the richest man in Abbeville county. Twenty years ago he went to the land with nothing but ability and a good name. To-day he owes no man anything but good will, and is worth more than $100,000. He has a word of reproach of him or of his business methods.

The Crop Prospects.
The recent rains have set the crops all right, where a sufficient amount of seed has been sown. The hot weather put the cotton crop to growing, and in a very short time, the rapid growth will be apparent. The difference in the stands as well as in the size of the plant.

Rock Spring.
The Rock Spring Alliance, No. 511 will meet at two o'clock on Friday, the 20th of June.

Has it ever occurred to you that you might profitably increase your business by doing a little more newspaper advertising with the idea of reaching the consumer? Take some special brand or make of goods which you honestly believe possesses merit, and put it with a moderate amount of advertising. If done judiciously, you will soon begin to realize results in the form of increased sales. These assertions are proved by the experience of business houses whose names are familiar from one end of the country to the other.

Last Saturday, Senator Hemphill received two boxes of books and papers, a gift from John Y. Lind, of Philadelphia, whom he recently visited. The books are standard works and the addition to Senator Hemphill's library will make it one of the most valuable in the country. A telegram announcing the death of Dr. Lind last Monday morning was received by Senator Hemphill that afternoon. Dr. Lind was long a citizen of California where he accumulated a handsome fortune. He has been in the country of a "boasted bond holder," and he might be your advantage to save your money and turn it out to be a bond holder, or the holder of a mortgage on somebody's land. There are always plenty of people who can't sleep without a mortgage on their land. Suppose you try to accumulate some of this class. You will sleep better, and you can easily make a living by having some money at interest.

The Messrs. Hunter Brothers brought a lot of beef cattle to town last Monday. They, like Mr. Wyatt Aiken, are reducing the circulating medium to their own good. If any neighbor of theirs should lament the scarcity of money in the country, they would do well to follow their example and gather up that there is of it, and trust to Providence or to the Government to issue more of it.

ABBEVILLE, S. C., June 9, 1891.
Good times have come again. Blackberries and plums are getting ripe.
Gardens are blooming.
Cherries are plentiful this season and are being offered in small quantities at 19 cents per quart.
Are young size chickens scarce because they are high? or high because they are scarce? Couldn't Abbeville get up a loafing club that would prove a success? Let's try.
Sometimes the "boys" paint the town "red" but our Council have painted it white, this looks better.
Harvest is here, and with it plenty of rain. The weather for the past two days has been delightfully cool.

Interesting Case.
The State of South Carolina, County of Abbeville, vs. John R. E. Kirby, Sheriff of said county, et al., Plaintiff-Applicant, against R. T. Kirkpatrick, et al., Defendants. This action was brought by plaintiff for a settlement of the accounts of Executor, for a construction of the will of Jane Taylor, deceased, and to ascertain the shares of the legatees.
The only questions not agreed upon by the parties were the following, to wit:
The claims of Annie Taylor, a child of testatrix, and a legacy for services rendered, for cooking, milking cows, &c. This claim covers a long term of years, a portion of which is barred by the statute of limitations. It is claimed that the testimony show any agreement as to compensation for such services. Nor does the testimony show any value for such services. The only witness who testified on this point, failed to fix a value. He said, "I don't know how much her services were worth."
I think the claim is not well sustained, and it is, therefore, disallowed.
The only other question is one of the construction of the will.
Did testatrix intend that an equal distribution of her real and personal, should be made amongst her children?
The negative side of this question is taken by James Taylor, Annie Taylor and Hannah Kirkpatrick, defendants in this action.
I deem it unnecessary to quote the will of testatrix as it is before me, or to state the position of counsel, as the pleadings are sufficient.
I am of opinion that testatrix, in and by her will, meant that her legatees, who are her children should share equally in all of her property, both real and personal.
During the lifetime of testatrix, must account for said lands at the value fixed by the appraisers who acted as such at her request during her life, and that the appraisement, made by the same appraisers, except the one who had died, whose name was stricken out, at the instance of the executor, of the lands sold to Annie Taylor and Hannah Kirkpatrick, is the value of the said tracts of land, and they are to be charged accordingly.
Those who may have received more than an equal share of said property, must pay back a sufficient amount in money to produce equality amongst said legatees.
The executor must be allowed credit for all sums due by the legatees for purchases at the sale of the personal property, provided, that the executor has not received of them. Given under my hand and the seal of the court, this fourteenth day of May, A. D. 1891.
